WALL STREET BUOYANCY TO STOCK LIST; LOANS RISE $40,000,000

Trading, However, Is Restricted to Moderate Volume and Bulls Find Public Following Is Not Easily Attracted.

CLOSING PRICES NEAR DAY'S BEST

National Cash Register Ranges Up 11 Points — American Can Is a Strong Feature — U. S. Steel Up a Fraction.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Bull prices again overcame opposition and shares closed substantially higher in today's stock market. Trading, however, was still restricted to moderate volume, and bulls find public following not easily attracted. Total sales aggregated 2,500,000 shares.

Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ending July 16 were announced by the Federal Reserve Board after the close of market as $2,243,000,000, representing an increase of $40,000,000 as compared to the preceding week.

This was the first expansion in a period of six weeks during which loans were reduced by $98,000,000 or from $4,101,000,000 as of June 2 last to $3,203,000,000 last week, when the total showed a net reduction of $18,000,000.

Analysis of the report shows loans on its own account increased $12,000,000, and loans for account of out-of-town banks rose $3,000,000, while loans for account of others decreased $33,000,000.

Commons' Budget. The day's news provided some sheet. It was reported in Wall street that Lamont du Pont, president of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. (also chairman of General Motors), had advised department heads and subsidiary presidents that he regarded conditions as sound, and lower commodity prices and money rate favorable to recovery.

David Sarnoff, president of Radio Corp., while acknowledging that first half earnings will be rather discouraging, stated that prospects have brightened and production is being increased.

Earnings statements appearing today included Purity Bakers, the first equal to $3 a share during the first 23 weeks of the year, as reduced from $3.45 in the same period a year ago, and Maclaren Allis, with 81 cents a share in the June quarter, as reduced from 56 cents.

Call money was plentiful at 2 per cent, with some offered at 1½ outside.

Favorable comment on the business outlook has been rather scarce of late, as so much of the so-called sunshiny talk of a few months ago proved embarrassing to the talkers. These new statements, therefore, gave Wall Street considerable encouragement.

The Sinclair deal to sell its half interest in Sinclair Pipe Line to Standard of Indiana was announced, and was regarded as a forerunner of the proposed merger of Sinclair and Prairie.

Closes at Day's Best. Closing quotations were close to the day's best. National Cash Register ran up more than 11 points in what appeared to be a short covering. Such is as Johns-Manville, Auburn and Vanadium closed 5 or more points higher.

American Can was a strong feature, gaining more than 4. American Telephone regained yesterday's loss of 3½. Rail cars came to the fore in the late trading. U. S. Steel closed up only a fraction.

The utility shares were inclined to rise, perhaps in response to the first half power consumption report.

Commodities were irregular. Wheat sold up more than 1 cent, then receded and closed off fractionally. Corn was also slightly off at the finish. Cotton, however, closed 20 to 60 cents a bale higher. Foreign exchanges eased, with Brazilian milreis breaking sharply.

Stock prices, with other tables and market news, will be found on pages 9C, 10C and 11C.

CHICAGO TABLOID FIRES REPORTER WITH BEST WISHES

Jimmy Murphy, 28 Years on the Job, Slipped for the "Take."

Special to the Post-Dispatch. CHICAGO, July 17.—Under the heading "Jimmy Murphy" the Daily Times, a tabloid, prints the following:

"Jimmy Murphy was the Daily Times police reporter until yesterday morning. For 28 years he had covered stories of crime and criminals, gangs and gangsters and at that time no word was ever whispered to his employers that Jimmy Murphy was 'on the take,' no suspicion held or voiced that dishonest money passed into his hands from any of the criminal elements whose doings he chronicled. Jimmy Murphy was a square-shooting veteran who lived on his salary, had respect for his fellow workers and the affection of the newspaper everywhere."

"Then, three years ago, Jimmy was approached by a friend with a proposal of a part interest in an insignificant neighborhood speak-easy. For once Jimmy slipped. For six or seven months he retained this interest in an institution tolerated by common consent but prohibited by law. Then he got out.

"When the murder of Jake Lingle brought into the spotlight the private affairs of even police reporters, Jimmy was called into the office of his boss. He, himself, gave the Daily Times its first information of his dereliction. Because newspapers can not retain on their staffs police reporters interested in enterprises which police are charged to suppress, Murphy was let out. He asked to go that way. He said that if he were the boss he knew there was just one thing. That was the real Jimmy Murphy.

"The Daily Times takes no pride nor credit in printing the fact of Murphy's relatively banal mistake — nor of his inevitable departure from this newspaper. It only remembers the many years of on-the-job, cheerful, faithful service in a tough game, and wishes him well.

"The Daily Times has nothing but good wishes for Jimmy Murphy."

Brunk's Explanation. Brunk said it had not been his practice nor that of previous State Treasurers to limit banks strictly to their fixed quotas of State deposits.

"When I came into office, in January 1929, State deposits at the Aurora Bank were $234,000 and the total of State deposits in all banks $1,093,876. The Aurora Bank at that time was entitled to only one-eighthieth, which would have been about $138,000.

"As a matter of fact, what the Aurora Bank did was to distribute the excess State deposits among smaller banks that could not afford to bid directly for a share of the State deposits."

Bankers' Financed Campaign. E. R. Adams, president of the Aurora bank, and M. T. Eastley, cashier, under indictment on charges resulting from the failure, are personal friends of Brunk. Between 1922 and 1928 they lent him $18,000 to finance various business ventures, and in 1928 advanced $5,000 to finance his campaign.

"The Aurora Bank was viewed by the two Grand National Bank employees who were tied up by the deposit box robbers. Employees of a St. Charles bank, recently robbed, also were summoned to view Brustman. No positive identification was obtained, so far as the police have known.

Woman Depositor Views Coins. Mrs. Josephine Ursig of 2434 Lucas avenue, who lost $1,000 gold coins from her deposit box in the robbery, viewed the coins taken from Brustman.

Brustman's arrest is the first which resulted from the widespread police hunt for the stolen money and jewelry and missing bonds, the latter comprising more than $90,000 of the loot from the Grand National. Two employees of the bank, discharged from their positions after the robbery, are under investigation.

Before Judge Butler in the Court of Criminal Correction next Monday, Circuit Attorney Miller said today that he would confer with his assistant, Joseph A. Lennon, who has just returned from his journey to New York in the Ryckoff case, before announcing a course of action to Brustman.

Brustman, known by the nickname of "Monte," gave his address as 47 Charlesville place, near Manchester road, in Brentwood. He was recently proprietor of a clothes cleaning establishment in Maplewood.

Adams and Eastley have confirmed this explanation, saying that Brustman's notes were put into the bank's assets so the depositors "and not ourselves" would benefit from whatever was realized. During the past 10 days, Brustman has repaid $10,000 of his debt to the bank, leaving a balance of $13,000 which he has promised to pay within 60 days.

12 WORKMEN KILLED IN TUNNEL BY GAS EXPLOSION

Lose Lives When Boring
Ignites Natural Pocket in San Francisco's Hetch-Hetchy Water District.

RESCUERS FORCED TO WEAR MASKS

While All Those in East
Drift Are Dead, 13 in West Part Are Carried to Safety.

By the Associated Press
CAMP MITCHELL, Cal., July 17.—A gas explosion killed an entire shift of 12 men in a tunnel of the Hetch-Hetchy construction project in the San Francisco municipal water area, 65 miles southeast of Oakland, early today.

Engineers said a natural gas pocket probably had been struck in the boring and the gas accidentally ignited.

The tunnel drops straight downward more than 800 feet from the surface and then branches into a drift to the east and one to the west. Those killed were in the east drift. Thirteen men in the west drift, which goes down about 1500 feet, were badly shaken and some were gassed, but all were brought to the surface. None was seriously hurt.

Two bodies were recovered almost immediately, but the gas flow soon drove rescuers to the use of masks.

One Man Hurled 50 Feet.
W. J. Kinney of Hartford, Wis., who was reported among those in the east drift, later was found at the surface. He did not go to work on the shift as scheduled, his place having been taken by Patrick Gallagher.

Dan Tranar, shop man working at the site of the shaft, was hurled 50 feet by the explosion, but was not thought seriously hurt. R. A. Trompozinski, who was near Tranar, also was badly shaken.

Charles O'Malley, who ascended to the surface just before the explosion, escaped the fate of his co-workers by a hair's breadth. He had barely stepped away from the shaft when the ground quivered from the blast. The shaft belched a great column of smoke.

C. R. Franklin, engineer in charge, said the men had been working in a serpentine formation of eight yesterday and had found no trace of gas. Evidence of the presence of gas generally appears in plenty of time to take precautions, he said.

The bodies of John McNichols, 42 years old, shift boss, and J. C. Maybin, 21, were recovered.

Those in Shaft.

Those remaining in the shaft were: G. Nations, 27, married, no address; C. R. Kavanagh, 20, Seattle; H. E. Kaub, Yorba Linda, Cal.; N. Yaworski, 34, Whitits, Canada; A. W. De Molay, 28, Tracy, Cal.; Tony Redka, 44, no address; C. Ulrich, 45, Loveland, Colo.; Patrick Gallagher, address unknown; L. R. McNeely, 32, Toledo, Ohio. The tunnel, 300 ft. in which the blast occurred is one of a score being constructed to bring mountain water from the high Sierras to San Francisco and adjoining communities. More than 87 miles of tunnels are included in the Hetch Hetchy work which will furnish 400,000,000 gallons of water daily and 1,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of electric power annually.

As a forerunner to today's tragedy, George C. Nolan, 46, topman, plunged 800 feet to his death when a skip cable parted in a shaft while he was being lowered with four cases of dynamite.

The dynamite did not explode. Before the skip left the surface Nolan made an unsuccessful attempt to reach a box of caps. Engineers said the whole camp would have been wrecked had the caps been loaded on the skip.

BRITAIN ACCEPTS THE PRINCIPLE OF U. S. OF EUROPE

Takes Issue With Methods
Suggested and Emphasized
Reply Is Preliminary and Tentative.

By the Associated Press
PARIS, July 17.—Great Britain's reply to Foreign Minister Briand's memorandum on a proposed federation of European states was received by the foreign office today. It accepts the principle of closer collaboration of European states but takes issue with the methods suggested.

The communication says the British Government intends its present reply to be of a preliminary and tentative character, "as M. Briand's program demands careful and prolonged consideration and the British Government feels it to be its duty to undertake that consideration in consultation with its members."

The British reply says that the feeling that the creation of any new political institutions at the present time might "create confusion and engender rivalry" which might diminish the authority of the League of Nations causes the present reply to be designated as "preliminary and provisional."

Fear Rivalry of Continents.

The fear also is expressed that such a union as France proposes might stimulate rivalry and hostility between the continents and that any measure taken must be elaborated so as to cause no unnecessary abroad.

Great Britain makes the suggestion that the Briand program be definitely incorporated in the framework of the League of Nations. This can be done, the reply suggests, by the creation of European committees of the Assembly, the Council and the technical organization of the League, without risking the difficulties that an entirely new institution might create.

The British note concludes that, believing free discussion necessary, the Government proposes that the memorandum figure on the agenda of the next League Assembly, and "thanks to the procedure, the nature of which is indicated above, we hope that practical results of real value may be obtained."

Czechoslovakia's Reply.

Czechoslovakia's answer to Foreign Minister Briand's invitation shows the newly created country to be one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the scheme.

The note, signed by Edward Benes, Foreign Minister, says: "Czechoslovakia, having always been favorable to co-operation among the states in a more restricted geographical region, is equally favorable to the organization of this co-operation in more vast regions; that is, to say, among all the states of Europe, and is ready to participate with all her strength in the effort made to achieve it."

The Norwegian reply also was received today. It offered full cooperation in achieving European union, but cautioned against haste. It emphasized that the object should be to solve questions in the economic field, and added: "The differences created among European states by tariff policies have a tendency to increase continually the height of customs barriers."

THOMAS MURPHY

In the hope that he would be transferred to the city where he thought he might obtain a job.

Family Urged Clemency. Edith Reilly, widow of the man and her mother, three sisters and two brothers, sent letters to Governor recommending clemency because of the doubt over the question of his guilt. The two identifying witness letters in which they recanted their conviction that Murphy was the murderer.

Wards and Attorney Irving Murphy insisted they were innocent. Murphy without fees as he was penniless, without relatives or friends, money raised in his behalf, was a small fund by the jail chaplain to cover an unsuccessful appeal to the Supreme Court.

He heard the news of the conviction from a Post-Dispatch reporter speaking through the bars of the cell at the City Jail. He did not appear to be disturbed, words coming slowly to the overtaken by death.

Death Shells in Pistol.

His pistol, held above his head in his right hand, contained several empty shells, indicating it is possible that he had fired the weapon in an effort to attract attention. A knife lying on his chest and a partly opened can of food from his emergency kit were seen as evidence that he had made a last attempt to eat.

Murphy, with James Allen of Los Angeles, a cousin of the pilot, and four other men, had broken camp yesterday preparatory to resuming their search for Graham's body when they sighted it, garbed as when he flew the Western Air Express mail between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City.

It's a greater punishment to go up for life than to put me in jail. I am too easily enraged. I can't help but feel I had hanged, at least have the consolation of being that my misery would be a week."

He told the reporter that he had written a letter to Mrs. Graham last night thanking her for her appeal for the commutation telling her that her "attitude is praiseworthy."

BODY OF AIR MAIL PILOT, MISSING 6 MONTHS, IS FOUND

Maurice Graham of Western Air Express Crashed Jan 11 in Utah Blizzard.

DEATH APPARENTLY DUE TO EXPOSURE

Revolver Containing Empty Shells Indicates He Fired It in Effort to Attract Attention.

By the Associated Press.

CEDAR CITY, Utah, July 17.—From rockbound Crystal Canyon, 25 miles south of here, the body of Maurice Graham, air mail flyer who died in a blizzard six months ago, is being brought here enroute to his home in Los Angeles.

Maj. Richard N. McDonald, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Graham, with Sheriff J. T. Leigh and two others, left here this morning for the spot where the pilot's body was found yesterday afternoon by a party headed by McDonald.

The position of Graham's body, together with many evidences he left of his fight against cold and exposure, led McDonald to believe that the weakened man, possibly suffering from a slight skull fracture suffered in landing his plane, had jumped from a large rock, had slipped on the muddy canyon floor and remained there to be overtaken by death.

THE former construction engineer in the Department of Public Utilities, a fugitive witness in the Ryckoff lighting contract scandal, was photographed in New York, with Assistant Circuit Attorney Joseph A. Leon of St. Louis, to whom he gave an affidavit telling how the city was cheated in the execution of the contract, which was published in the Post-Dispatch. Thomas W. Stulte, who was found in the army at Mitchel Field, Long Island, N. Y., by the Post-Dispatch after an absence of fifteen months from St. Louis, will testify at the trials of Contractor Ryckoff, former Director of Public Utilities Pritchard and George B. Heath, former chief electrical engineer in the department, who are under indictment on charges of obtaining $157,000 from the city under false pretenses.

YOUNG AVIATOR WHO HIT MOUNTAIN DIES

Frank Goldsborough Succumbs to Injuries on His Twentieth Birthday.

By the Associated Press.

BENNINGTON, Vt., July 17.—On his twentieth birthday Frank Goldsborough, whose father, Brice Goldsborough, was lost on an attempted trans-Atlantic flight, died a victim of a crashing plane in a fog-filled mountain forest.

The youthful aviator, who held junior transcontinental flight records, passed away late yesterday at the Putnam Memorial Hospital. He failed to regain consciousness during the two days since the crash last Monday on Woodford Mountain, and presumably had fought the storm and cold for several days.

Goldsborough was flying the air mail run from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City. It was on the last leg of his flight that he became lost in a storm over Nevada and Utah.

Caught in a Blizzard.

Goldsborough left Las Vegas, Nev., late at night on Jan. 10 for Salt Lake City on his regular run. At the time of his takeoff a blizzard was brewing, but the flyer, noted for his daring, thought he could battle through it.

The odds were against him, however, and before he had flown far, the blizzard had increased in intensity. At St. George in the southwest corner of Utah, residents heard his plane circling over the town, and thought he intended to land, but was unable to do so because of snow that had covered the lights on the emergency landing field.

Goldsborough apparently gave up the effort to land and again headed for Salt Lake City. Along the route between Cedar City and St. George, farmers and residents of towns said they heard a plane thought to have been Graham's flying low, as if looking for a place to land. His plane is believed to have crashed high in the Kanarraville Mountains early in the morning of Jan. 11.

Immediately a search was started by air and land over most of Western Utah and Eastern Nevada. No trace, however, was found of the flyer until his plane was discovered by two sheepherders 22 miles south of here last month.

One of Best Air Mail Pilots.

Maurice Graham survived the hazards of World War aviation and then flew 180,000 miles over the air mail route without ever being late before he crashed.

Graham had spent more than 6,000 hours in the air. He was one of the four original pilots on the Los Angeles-Salt Lake City line, and had flown that route continuously since its establishment in 1928. He was considered one of the best air mail pilots in the United States.

Graham received his training at San Diego, Cal., Fort Sill, Okla., Fort Worth, Tex., and overseas. He joined the Army June 28, 1917, and served at the front with the Fifteenth Aero Squadron and also with the American Army of Occupation after the armistice.

During the war Graham's observer was shot while his plane was flying 50 feet above the battlefield in the Argonne Forest and dropped carrier pigeons and supplies to the "famous Lost Battalion." He was credited officially with bringing down one enemy balloon and had two citations.

After the war Graham flew from Germany to England, Scotland and Ireland and back to France. He was born in Indianapolis 22 years ago. Mrs. Graham and two children, twins 8 years old, live in Hollywood.

The disappearance of the grocer was reported Sunday by his brother, Frank, and his abandoned automobile was found Monday afternoon on Fourth street opposite the Broadview Hotel, East St. Louis.

CAPPER TO CARRY WHEAT PURCHASE REQUEST TO LEGGE

Kansan, Unsuccessful in Appeal to President, Plans to See Farm Board Chairman Monday.

SENATOR ALLEN FACES PROBLEM

In Effort for Re-Election He Must Repudiate Hoover Policy Or That of His Own Newspaper.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The condition of the wheat market remains a cause of grave concern to the administration, but it was officially reiterated yesterday that President Hoover will not intervene in the program of the Federal Farm Board, notwithstanding that Senator Capper of Kansas Tuesday appealed to him to direct the Board to buy 100,000,000 bushels of wheat in the open market.

Capper's unsuccessful entry was made during the course of an extended call at the White House. It followed a conference between the President and Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, at which Hyde related the results of his recent western tour with Chairman Legge of the Farm Board, in which they advocated a reduction of wheat acreage as a means of stabilizing prices.

Capper will carry his request to Legge when the chairman returns to Washington Monday, but with small hope that it will be granted. Legge has positively declared that no more large quantities of wheat will be purchased at this time for the purpose of affecting prices. The Board already has 60,000,000 bushels on hand, which it bought several months ago in an effort to keep the price up.

Sale Results in Prompt Decline.

The question of what to do with this wheat is one of the gravest problems now facing the Board. Recent efforts to sell a fraction of it resulted in a prompt decline in the market price, and the view now prevails here that any movement by the Board to sell its stored wheat will break the market. Meantime, the cost of keeping it in storage amounts to approximately $1,000,000 a month.

Discovery that the army and navy have been purchasing large amounts of food supplies outside the United States, at prices substantially lower than those prevailing in this country, has resulted in the issuance of orders that all food purchases must be made in this country when possible.

An interesting situation produced by the wheat crisis is the predicament of Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas, who is a candidate for re-election this year. Since his appointment to the Senate two years ago by Gov. Clyde Reed, Allen has supported the Hoover administration on virtually every issue. He voted for the tariff bill and for the confirmation of Judge Parker for the Supreme Court.

Allen's Alternative.

Now Gov. Reed is bitterly attacking the administration's farm policy, and Max and Louis Levand, the managers of Senator Allen's Wichita Beacon, are calling upon Chairman Legge to resign, while President Hoover is supporting Legge. Allen is confronted with the alternatives of repudiating the policy of the administration which he has supported through thick and thin, or repudiating the views of the Governor who appointed him and the newspaper of which he is chairman of the board of directors. It is not a pleasant situation for a Senator running for renomination against two opponents.

The announcement from the White House that the President will confine his vacation to a brief trip to the Northern Rockies, avoiding any appearances in the wheat belt, and that he will make no speeches, occasioned no surprise here. Since the receptions tendered Legge and Hyde in the Middle West indicated that the President's former plan to "restore confidence" by a series of vacation talks in the West would be canceled.

Legge Replies to Kansas Governor's Charge on Policy.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, said yesterday that the position of the Grain Stabilization Corporation is "practically unchanged" from the June 16 level and that it would be maintained there through the present crop moving period "unless the price advances to or above the original cost of wheat."

Legge's statement was made in a telegram to Gov. Clyde M. Reed of Kansas and was made public together with other correspondence between the two in regard to the Farm Board's wheat policy. The correspondence included a letter from Legge replying to the Governor's assertion that "the uncertainty of Farm Board policy with respect to its large holdings is one of the most depressing factors in the wheat situation."

Corporation Filling Order.

In his letter Legge said the Grain Stabilization Corporation received inquiry for wheat in the Northwest on which millers do not have an option; that the wheat is apparently not available from other sources and that the corporation is filling the order and immediately buying an equal amount.

"It cannot make any possible difference in the effect on the market if demands of this kind are met according to good business practice," continued Legge, "as long as the quantity of wheat held by stabilization is kept intact."

In a message to Legge Tuesday, Gov. Reed complained that an announcement by the stabilization corporation that it would buy an amount of new wheat equivalent to that sold from old crop holdings "came after the announcement of the sale of substantial quantities and did not save the market Saturday."

No Excuse for Excitement.

Replying to this, Legge declared that "there was no reasonable excuse for the grain trade getting excited about the sale referred to." He continued:

"The trade was quite familiar with the millers' agreement giving them the option to purchase. We had supposed, based on the action of some of the other millers, and further fact that the new crop in the Southwest had proved to be of very high quality, that the millers would release what they had in storage, rather than exercise this option."

One of Legge's letters referred to newspaper articles indicating that Legge and the Governor had quarreled, and said:

"Other papers seem to have the impression that Mr. Hyde and myself were asking the farmers to quit raising wheat in Kansas. You know how far that is from the facts, the suggestion being only to reduce their acreage beyond a doubt," he said. "I am certain from many private conversations that they will."

Though no attempts to increase or stabilize wheat prices by purchase of grain will be made by the Board through the Stabilization Corporation "for the present," the chairman said that if the Board's program is carried out, wheat ultimately will be placed on a domestic price basis through elimination of surplus.

He added that the Board's action in having the Stabilization Corporation withhold 60,000,000 bushels of wheat from the market already has resulted in a market price of from 7 to 10 cents a bushel higher than it otherwise would have been.

HELD FOR MURDER OF ILLINOIS MINER MISSING A YEAR

Woman and Locksmith Arrested at Eldorado After Finding of Charred Bones and Teeth.

ALLEGED VICTIM'S CLOTHES FOUND

Said to Have Been Suffering From Blow Delivered by Accused Man at Time of Disappearance

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ELDORADO, Ill., July 17.—Mrs. Etta Neal, 50 years old, and Spencer H. Wilson, 55, a locksmith, were arrested here yesterday and taken to the county jail at Harrisburg where they are held without bond on charges of the murder of Ed Galligher, a coal miner, in July, 1929. Charges were filed by the State's Attorney E. F. Rumsey.

Both Wilson and Mrs. Neal deny the charges and say that Galligher, as far as they know, simply disappeared. Date for preliminary hearing has not been set.

Galligher, who is said to have been a boarder at the Neal house, disappeared early in July and has not been seen since. Rumsey asserts he has found charred bones and teeth, which he believes to be those of Galligher, in a chicken house on land several miles from here which belongs to Mrs. Neal. The chicken house burned at night, he says, about the time of Galligher's disappearance.

Rumsey also says that he has found a pistol, which was the property of Galligher, in Mrs. Neal's house. He says that Mrs. Neal first denied having the pistol and later said she had received it from him together with a shotgun which she sold. Other personal property, including clothes and fishing tackle, Rumsey says, were found on Mrs. Neal's property.

An automobile, which Rumsey says was Galligher's and which Mrs. Neal says was the property of her son, who died recently, is also regarded by the State's Attorney as strong evidence.

According to Rumsey, Dr. J. C. Hicks of Eldorado said he was treating Galligher for a blow on the head which Galligher said he received from Brown. The treatments were given after the time Galligher disappeared.

About the time that Galligher's disappearance was noticed he stopped writing to relatives. His sister, Mrs. El Hughes, and his brother, James, both of whom live at Scammon, Kan., the family's old home, and his son, Charles, who lives at Detroit, have all said, according to Rumsey, that Galligher stopped writing them about the same time after having written regularly for years.

OFFICER OF NATIONAL CITY BANK BRANCH IN PARIS DISAPPEARS

Woman Charges Lauriano Carlo de Villanueva with Misuse of Her Funds.

PARIS, July 17.—Disappearance of Lauriano Carlo de Villanueva, a high officer of the Paris branch of the National City Bank of New York, today was made known by the Department of Justice. A Venezuelan man filed a complaint against the missing banker charging misuse of her funds. Officers of the bank issued a statement that the depository funds were unimpaired. Rumors among friends of Villanueva said sums up to $1,000,000 were missing, but the man's associates discredited the report.

A Mme. Gomez, said to be a citizen of Venezuela, as was Villanueva, made the complaint against him this afternoon, the Palace of Justice annexed.

Machinery of the Government proclamations had been set in motion to track the man, who is the son of a former Venezuelan Charge d'Affaires here. Villanueva had been a commercial attaché at the Legation for about two years until the post was abolished recently. The Foreign Office notified the French Government that the accused man had no diplomatic status. Villanueva's wife, who is also said to be absent from their Paris home, is Senora Lenora Rosales Villanueva, daughter of a prominent Ecuadorian family. They have one child, a daughter.

ST. LOUIS SAUNDERS STORES UNAFFECTED BY BANKRUPTCY

Head of Chain Makes Statement; Withdraws Denial of Insolvency for Group of 150.

By the Associated Press
MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 17.—Clarence Saunders said yesterday that the St. Louis Saunders stores were not affected by the bankruptcy of Clarence Saunders Stores, Inc., as had been reported by the Associated Press.

Creditors filed bankruptcy proceedings against Clarence Saunders Stores, Inc., in Memphis last Monday. On Tuesday Saunders withdrew a denial of insolvency, explaining that the company's credit was "practically destroyed" after a banking syndicate had refused to extend the maturity of a $500,000 loan. The company controls about 150 stores.

"Let there be no misunderstanding, however, as to the position of the Republicans of Iowa," the document read. State Convention Pledges Support to President Hoover.

DES MOINES, Ia., July 17.—Support was pledged to President

The platform recommended Congress for "giving agriculture the best tariff rates that it has ever had," but declared that the "present level of farm prices is inequitable and unfair." Support was pledged to President Hoover and the Federal Farm Board.

KILLED TRYING OUTSIDE LOOP IN SMALL PLANE

New Jersey Aviator Attempts Difficult Feat in 40 H. P. Craft, Wing Collapses.

By Leaded Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Roy Ahearn, Hasbrouck, N. J., aviator, planned to "give the crowd a real thrill" next Saturday at Teterboro Airport with an exhibition at a benefit air meet for the Elks' crippled children's fund, but his rehearsal yesterday resulted fatally. Nearly 4000 feet above the Jersey meadows he tried to put a tiny parasol monoplane with a 40-horsepower motor through an outside loop, an evolution which has sorely tried the stamina of far sturdier ships. Again and again he tried, but each time the little monoplane refused to "break under" at the bottom of its dive and began climbing on its back at the other side.

Each time he was beaten the pilot pulled out of his headlong descent toward earth and patiently climbed back for another try. Finally, after many failures, he seemed to climb a little higher, to dive a little more recklessly than before.

W. D. Davis, Ridgefield, N. J., owner of the plane Ahearn was flying, was one of those watching from the ground. He estimated the little ship was making 200 miles an hour—more than twice its normal high speed—when Ahearn started the bottom of his loop. Then the wings suddenly broke away from the fuselage, which dropped nose first and fell with a roar.

The spectators waited in vain for Ahearn to struggle free of the wingless craft and "crack" the parachute he had strapped on before going aloft. He had both altitude and time to spare. Perhaps he was pinned in his seat, or rendered unconscious when the wing collapsed and blew away.

The fuselage struck and half buried itself in the soft ground. Student Pilot Killed in Crash at Fort Dodge, Ia.

By the Associated Press.

FORT DODGE, Ia., July 17.—Donald Sabin, 27 years old, Fort Dodge student pilot, was killed in an airplane crash last night a mile north of the local airport. Sabin was flying alone at a height of about 3000 feet when his plane went into an inverted spin.

Three Flyers Hurt Testing Naval Plane Parachutes.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Lieutenant-Commander Oscar W. Erickson, chief naval inspector of the aircraft factory in the Philadelphia navy yard, was injured seriously, and two other men also were hurt yesterday in a crash of a bomber while testing parachutes.

The Commander with his companions fell about 100 feet on Minit Field in the navy yard. He suffered a possible fractured skull and a fracture of the nose. E. L. Tally, chief inspector, suffered a sprained back, dislocated shoulder, and was burned on the legs by flaming gasoline. W. B. Stith, a naval hospital apprentice, received a broken arm and was burned on the legs and body.

The three were testing parachutes and were just going up with another set when the small pilot parachute used to open the larger parachute prematurely opened causing the larger safety device also to spread out. When the wind caught it the large parachute opened quickly and, pulling like a kite, acted like an anchor on the moving plane, causing the ship to plunge to the ground. It fell about 25 feet from the edge of the Delaware River and took fire.

LUTHERANS TAKE NO ACTION—HERE TO BAR LEGION MEMBERS

Issue Brought Up at Wisconsin Meeting Not Discussed by Missouri Synod.

No action affecting the status of Lutheran church members who are members of the American Legion is in prospect in the Missouri Synod, Dean J. H. C. Fritz of Concordia Seminary said today. Ministers of Wisconsin churches, affiliated with the Missouri Synod, meeting Tuesday in Milwaukee, discussed a proposal to bar Legion members from the church, but the matter was laid over until a later meeting.

Dean Fritz said he had heard no discussion of the Legion question here, and that it did not come up at the district synod recently held here. The general synodical gathering will be in 1932. He said the Lutheran church, being opposed to the union of church and state, did not favor the holding of religious exercises by secular bodies, and for this reason it had opposed certain secret orders. He did not know whether this objection would apply to the Legion.

BOOKS AT PUBLIC LIBRARY ISSUED FOR 28-DAY PERIOD

Extension of Time to Borrowers
Lessons Work; Plan Proved Popular.

Issuance for 28 days of books previously issued for 14 days has proved successful at the Public Library, Charles H. Compton, assistant librarian, reports. The new system has been in force for two and a half months and has been favorably commented upon by both borrowers. Much time is saved the library staff, which formerly had an average of 200 renewals daily.

Circulation figures for June show a loss when compared to the figures for the same month last year, due to the inauguration of the system. During the month 202,344 books were circulated by the Public Library, $508 less than last year's figure.

The library collection was increased by the acquisition of 3930 books in June, 1840 of which went to Central Library and 462 to Seward Branch. Forty-three new volumes printed in Braille were received by the Blind Department.

Memorial to Composer Dedicated at SHOOTON, Wis., July 17.—A memorial to Eben E. Rexford, author of "Silver Threads Among the Gold," has been dedicated. It is a tablet on a granite boulder on the lawn of the Congregational Church which he attended.

Jefferson Memorial East Wing Transformed to Give Accurate Picture of Life in Old St. Louis Indian Relics, Pioneer Home, Implements and Scenes of Early Days Arranged With Precision and Clarity.

The historical museum in the east wing of Jefferson Memorial has been transformed to bring out items of interest so aptly as to place it on a competitive footing, in attendance, with the Lindbergh trophy collection in the west wing.

This achievement marks the final stage in the program, begun last fall under direction of Isaac H. Lionberger, acting president of Missouri Historical Society, to give every visitor to the society's museum an entertaining and memorable stretch beyond the old St. Louis. That visits stretches beyond the French and Spanish trading post into the shadows of a past far more remote.

Most important of all the changes is the arrangement of Indian relics so that their full significance is apparent, to many laymen, for probably the first time. The collection includes 150,000 articles of flint alone, and what is described as the most valuable single case of Indian artifacts in the world.

Visitors entering the east wing have an immediate and vivid glimpse of pioneer life. At their left is a model log cabin. At their right is the center of primitive home life—the fireside, with a fireplace made and decorated by a portrait painter, Sarkis Erganian, and surrounded by the homely implements of hard working frontier wives.

Precision and Clarity.

This large room, once swampland by the overgrown Indian collection and uninhabitable to most, has been arranged with precision and clarity. The work, begun April 20 by Gorard Fowke, well-known Indian archaeologist, left on view only the very finest articles of the collection. Hundreds of artifacts in pottery, thousands in smooth stone and tens of thousands in flint—which only made it difficult for visitors to find the more significant exhibits—thereby have been made available for a gift to the Board of Education and loans to any other schools which may call for them.

Grouped about the archaeological cases, as about the two principal displays in the anteroom, are exhibits of which each illustrates a particular phase of life and manners in old St. Louis. Ranged about the wall, in chronological order from the entrance, are documents and pictures that give the story, historically, both with the portraits of Laclade and Chouteau and the original petition for incorporation of the village in 1868. In another small room adjoining the large museum on the east are displayed the handwork, clothing, tools and weapons of "modern" Indians.

One case in the east room contains 40 samples of American furs and the tools used by the Indians, to illustrate every phase in preparation for the fur market. There is a great gray-brown robe, made of the down plucked from the breasts of innumerable young eagles. There is the warlike autobiography of some unknown brave, in pictographs on two tanned buffalo hides joined to make a single "page" 7x10 feet. And there are dozens of other exhibits—bows and poisoned arrows, beaded buckskin cradles, wampum-belts, clothing painstakingly decorated with hundreds of porcupine quills and thousands of beads.

Groups Carefully Classified.

The largest exhibits of artifacts are shown in two new cases in the museum proper. At the east end is a case of smooth, "pecked or ground" articles, and at the west end are the chipped flints. Below the tray of each case is a bank of drawers, in which Fowke has meticulously classified thousands of relics for the study of archaeologists.

Several hundred arrowheads have been arranged for display in order of length from $\frac{1}{4}$ inch to six inches. Beside them are much larger but more delicate "ceremonial" flints, which, Fowke explained, "had as definite a meaning as epaulets or class pins, representing to the Indian the spirit of the thing he wanted to do."

Birds and animals are represented in dozens of flints. One is a perfect gull in flight, round in Calhoun County, Ill. There are turtles, beaver, a lizard or alligator, a snake, and many geese. The skill of the artisans was sufficient to show a distinction between the "set" of a goose in full flight, or in rising or lighting.

Amidst the smooth stones in the case at the opposite end are pipes of stone or hematite (iron ore), discoid stones probably used in games, gouges and chisels, ungrounded axes from $\frac{1}{4}$ to 21 pounds and grooved axes from $\frac{1}{4}$ ounce to 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ pounds.

"A member of one of the early Jesuit explorations," Fowke remarked, "related that he had seen an Indian drive a tomahawk head into a tree branch, so that the branch would grow over it and form a solid handle. For years the report was scoffed at. Nobody believed an Indian would wait three or four years for a tree branch to grow into a tomahawk handle. Now we know they did just that. Here is a tomahawk which was dredged from the Ohio River at from his first appearance in 1878 are a center of interest. A case of ancient locks includes that of the first St. Louis jail (1826) and the supposed key of the Chouteau Mill at Eighth and Poplar streets.

A variety of exhibits of clothing have been laboriously renovated, even laundered, by Miss Anne Kinnard of the historical society staff with gratifying effect. Wedding dresses recovered antebellum daintiness. An exhibit that may have contributed to that daintiness in 1860 is a heavily padded, stylized matress covered with inside pockets. There are two cases of embroidery and a case of hand-made samplers, exclusively worked, dating back to 1735. There is even a case of dolls, including a few made from cornhusks.

Out in the anteroom, beside the cabin and fireplace, one case displays the miniatures and silhouettes of early St. Louis. Another shows documents of the Louisiana Transfer. A third contains compasses used to lay out St. Louis streets a century ago, a sun dial made by Thomas Jefferson at Monticello and etched with his signature, a combination watch and compass with a porcelain face, in the sort used by old-time steamboat men, a clock of Charles X of Sweden and a "Nuremberg egg," the earliest type of watch, made nearly 400 years ago.

E. ST. LOUIS COUNCIL TO PASS BRIDGE BILL

Ordinance Providing Also for $700,000 Union Station Received and Filed.

Authority to construct a new $700,000 Union Station in East St. Louis and to build viaducts and relocate tracks to connect with the proposed new Municipal Bridge approaches will be granted the Terminal Railroad Association in an ordinance scheduled for passage next Wednesday by the East St. Louis City Council.

The ordinance was taken up by the Council at its meeting yesterday and by unanimous vote it was received and filed, a necessary procedure before final enactment, which Mayor Frank Doyle said was assured.

Under the proposed ordinance, the Terminal is to eliminate the Broadway viaduct carrying the street approach to the Eads Bridge over the railroad tracks. The plan is to separate the grades at this point by elevating the tracks and depressing the street, the entire cost to be borne by the Terminal.

The new Union Station will be at a point near Main street and Broadway, just before the opening of the Municipal Bridge to the Terminal. It is expected that practically all St. Louis passenger trains to and from points east of the Mississippi River will stop there.

The enactment of this legislation will facilitate carrying out the bridge improvement plans contemplated in three ordinances recently passed by the St. Louis Board of Aldermen, including making the Eads Bridge a free highway crossing for private vehicles and pedestrians through payment of $140,000 a year rental by the city of St. Louis to the Terminal.

GREATER ST. LOUIS PLANNER RECEIVES DOCTOR'S DEGREE

Thomas H. Reed Honored by University of Brussels; Wrote "Leopold of the Belgians."

Thomas H. Reed, professor of political science at the University of Michigan and the expert in municipal government employed by the City and County Metropolitan Development Committee to draft the Greater St. Louis plan, has had a good deal of secret amusement since he came here more than a year ago, at the persistence with which acquaintances, toastsasters and the public called him "Dr. Reed."

It was as though people thought a man of his standing surely must be a doctor of science or philosophy. In reality, his only degrees have been A. B. (Bachelor of arts) and LL. B. (Bachelor of laws) from Harvard. Hereafter, however, the title of doctor will be correct, for the University of Brussels, Belgium, has conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Law. Dr. Reed is an authority on Belgian municipal government and history and was decorated by King Albert last year for his book, "Leopold of the Belgians."

About six months ago, the references to "Dr." Reed at a series of Greater St. Louis meetings became so numerous that a group of newspaper men were moved to write a sequence of jingles about it. The professor has preserved this verse in memory of the time: "when I was constantly called 'Doctor and was not one,' and he says, 'This settles the matter as far as the title is concerned.'

BOOTLEGGER SLAIN DELIVERING ALCOHOL TO STATE DRY AGENT

Watertown (Ia.). Man Dies When Found It Has Been Trapped.

By the Associated Press.
HAMPTON, Ia., July 17.—Harland (One-Arm Pete) Peterson of Watertown, Ia., was shot and killed by a State dry agent last night during a revolver fight that followed Peterson's delivery of a gallon of alcohol to the agent. Authorities would not give the name of the agent who shot Peterson.

Peterson had made an appointment to deliver the alcohol at a lonely roadside point three miles east of Hampton. Five men ambushed him as he drove up and left his car.

Peterson, carrying the can, walked toward the men, one of whom accosted him, and informed him of his authority. Peterson dropped the can, drew a revolver, fired once and missed. The agent shot the bullet, piercing Peterson's head.

In the car with Peterson were Mrs. Lois Wheeler, 28 years old, and Cecil Vinton, 25, of Waterloo. They were held pending an inquest and investigation of the shooting. Sheriff Lee McNamee said two of the agents were undercover men and the other three, including the man who shot Peterson, were State prohibition agents.

"Murder" Only Bagpipe Practice. By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 17.—"Murder" yelled somebody over the telephone to police headquarters, giving a basement address in the West Forties. Officers approaching heard strange noises. The cause of them presented his card: "Frank X. Hennessy, Reliable Al Prostess, Scotch Highland Piper." Detectives deduced that ingenious neighbors had found a way to obtain relief from bagpipe practice.

VISITING CHICAGOAN SEES HIS AUTO IN PARK HERE

He Had Not Heard of Its Being Stolen; Asks Police Aid to Find It.

John Levick of Chicago, in St. Louis on a business trip, today asked police to help him find his automobile in St. Louis and solve what is an amazing mystery to him.

Last night, Levick and his friend, Thomas Hart, 2500 Miami street, were driving in Tower Grove Park, when the automobile went by. Levick, recognizing that it was the same make as his machine, and moreover bore the same Illinois license number, 1-112-419, urged Hart to give chase, which he did, only to lose track of it in a traffic tangle at Kinghighway.

Levick told police that he last saw the machine five days ago in Chicago, when his wife, Mrs. Jessie Levick, was leaving to go on a trip to Piqua, O. In it. He said he had not heard of its being stolen or of his wife's changing her destination.

WILMER ALLISON TO PLAY STEFANI IN DAVIS CUP SINGLES TOMORROW

GEORGE LOTT TO FACE CAPTAIN OF ITALIAN TEAM IN SECOND MATCH

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 17.—Wilmer Allison, Texas boy, who beat the world's champion Henri Cochet at Wimbledon, will play Georgeo de Stefano, captain of the Italian Davis Cup team, in the opening singles match of the Internationals at Roland Garros Stadium tomorrow. The match will start at 2:30 p.m. (7:30 a. m. St. Louis time).

George Lott, also of the American team, will meet Humberto de Murgurano, captain of the Italian team, in the second singles match at 4 p.m. (9 a. m. St. Louis time).

Drawing for the two matches took place at noon today at the headquarters of the Racing Club of France. Neither American nor Italian has yet designated a doubles team but will choose them tomorrow.

The third day's play Sunday will be a reverse of the opening singles, Lott starting against De Stefano and Allison playing the final match with De Murgurano.

COLLINS WILL PLAY ROACH IN JUNIOR GOLF TOURNAMENT FINAL

Collins was two over par for the 15 holes, going out in 85 as compared to Cochran's 84. Cochran was five down after the first nine and although he reduced this to four down, Collins kept near-par golf. Their cards:

Out—
Collins 532 454 344—85
Cochran 355 485 554—82

In—
Collins 452 444 XXX
Cochran 443 524 XXX

Roach reached the semifinal round by virtue of a hard-fought 2 and 1 victory over Otto Stamm of Midland Valley in the third round yesterday while Schwartz eliminated Eddie Donohue of Woodlawn, 5 and 3; Cochran conquered Bruce Miller, Algonquin, 1 up in 20 holes, while Collins won from George Kippenberger, Woodlawn, 2 and 1.

The match between Miller and Cochran was easily the feature of the third round. The boys playing close to par golf, were all square at the end of the regulation 18 holes. On the first extra hole Cochran was nicely on the green in two shots while Miller was some 10 yards away with his first and half-stymied by a tree. Bruce made a hole out with a putter to reach the putting surface and gained a half with a four.

On the next hole, a short par 3, only 140 yards long, both were to the left of the green with their tee shots. Cochran came back too strongly and went over the green into a trap, while Miller's second hit a tree and rolled down a hill in front of the green. Cochran put his third on and was down in two putts to win the hole and match with a five when Miller took a six.

Roach had a 72 for his 18 holes with Stamm, who took 74 for the round. Stamm was ahead of Mike frequently with his drives, but on the greens Roach was superior and that told the tale.

The same was true in the victory of Collins over Kippenberger. George several times was close to the cup with a win or half score, sure when Collins would roll in a long putt to capture the hole. Charley made putts of considerable length on seven of the holes.

Record Mackeral Catch. BOSTON, Mass., July 17.—The largest single day's catch of mackerel in six years arrived at the fish pier today. Twenty-two seiners brought 1,050,000 pounds of the fish, caught yesterday, causing a two-cent drop in price. Wholesalers were asking four to five cents a pound.

Pettigrew Succeeds Kelly. Ned Pettigrew, agent for the Oklahoma City Indians, the manager of the team several years ago, is back in the pilot's seat, succeeding Joe Kelly, who resigned.

Brandt Released. Wilmer Brandt, a rookie first baseman with the Los Angeles Angels, was released last week.

Mastro to Meet Fidel La Barba in Chicago Ball Park

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 17.—EARL MASTRO, Chicago featherweight contender, and Fidel La Barba of Los Angeles, have been signed for a 10-round fight during the first week in August, but the Chicago Stadium will not stage the show.

The Stadium Corporation apparently had the fight a great natural for Chicago all squared up, but manager Wolff, who made debut as a promoter last week, announced last week, reached in and shared the attraction. It is planned to present the offering in one of the major league baseball parks.

It Mandel fights himself out in one round, the minute rest will be nowhere near enough time for him to recuperate very much, and as round follows round the effort will be all the greater for Sammy, till at last he'll be completely exhausted and unable to come back at all.

This will be no easy fight for Singer, not at all as easy as some of his friends would have him believe. In spite of the results out of Mandel's training camp the champion looks terrible. He is in very trim, yellow as a fight. He has the finesse in boxing that Al Singer still lacks, and this will stand him in good stead tonight.

But in summing it all up, I am convinced Mandel will not be strong enough at the weight to withstand the aggressiveness of the young Al Singer. That's why I pick Al to win tonight.

UNIVERSITY CITY
TO PLAY FESTUS
IN LEGION TITLE
GAME TOMORROW

University City's Junior Legion baseball team, which defeated the Mo-Pac last Monday for the St. Louis district title, will play its next contest in the State eliminations tomorrow afternoon when it meets the Festus nine, Southeast Missouri district winner at Festus. The game begins at 2:30 o'clock.

University City may find enough sledging against a team composed of larger boys. The local district winners, with few exceptions, will be eligible to play next year, while the Festus players are all near the age limit. U. City, this year, has gained 12 victories against only one defeat. The Southeast Missouri champions have a clean record in league encounters. U. City's only defeat came at the hands of Webster Groves.

Sanders will pitch for the locals. That the county team has some good hitters is shown by the averages for the season. John Sanders is leading with an even .500. Melvin Harten, the best swatter on the team, has a .416 mark. Allemang hit .400, but he was only at bat five times. McConnell was next with .364.

Will Take Five Reserves.

Bob Herweck, who early in the season was performing like a veteran, will be taken along only as relief pitcher. He has not fully recovered from a recent illness.

Besides Herweck, City will also take four other substitutes—Massa, Zucker, Zimmerman and Allemang. The relief hurler for the Festus team is Autz, while Pruneau, Smith, Coleman and Werchon will be available for any position.

Tom Anslin, Festus American Legion team sponsor, said that his team would rely on Miller, a southpaw, to do the pitching.

The winner of the game will meet the winner of the Springfield district at Sportsman's Park, not later than July 25. The team which wins will then play the Kansas City district champions before Aug. 8 at Kansas City for the State title. The Missouri champions meet the Kansas State winners at Quincy, Ill., on Aug. 13. On the same date the Illinois and Iowa State titleholders meet, and on the following day the winners of the two games play for Region No. 5 championship.

Watson Announces Plan to Limit Debate After Leader of Opposition Refuses to Agree to It.

14 VOTES CREDITED TO OPPOSITION

Hiram Johnson Refusing to Curtail Discussion, Asserts He Will Fight to Bitter End.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Senator Hiram Johnson (Rep.), California, leader of the "die-hards" against the London naval treaty, roared to the Senate today that he would fight on to the bitter end against the ratification of the treaty.

Watson (Rep.), Indiana, the majority leader, told the Senate at the opening of the session that if the opposition would not agree to limit debate beginning next Tuesday, cloture, the only means by which the majority could curb unnecessary debate, would be invoked.

In the Senate from California came to agree to limit the debate, "asked Watson mildly.

"I am not," thundered Johnson.

"Will the Senator," pursued Watson, "agree that beginning next Tuesday at 11 a. m. debate shall be limited to 10 minutes for each Senator on each reservation and on the treaty itself?"

"I will not," shouted Johnson.

"Then I would like to serve notice," said Watson, "that the Senate will meet on Saturday."

"And will it also meet on Sunday?" asked Johnson sarcastically.

Ample Time for Opposition. Assuring him that it would not, Watson went on to say that Senators opposing the treaty would have ample time in which to express themselves further during the three remaining days of this week next Monday.

"I thank the Senator for his kindness," said Johnson mincingly. "I appreciate it beyond words."

Watson said it was obvious that the great majority of Senators were ready for action. No effort, he added, had been made to curtail debate, but it had become clear that the opposition had reached the point of talking "for the express purpose of dissipating a quorum."

He then served formal notice that cloture would be resorted to. "Every Senator has had his mind made up," said Watson. "Every Senator understands the treaty and knows how he will vote. Further debate will not change a single vote. We can't sit here indefinitely when the great majority are ready to act."

Then arose Johnson with a torrent of impassioned words. He was engaged, he said, in a task of transcendent importance to the country.

"Fighting for My Country."

"I am fighting for my country, and I am willing to die for my country," he said. "The majority may do as they please. I am asking no favors from the majority. Even though I be alone, I will stand here and express myself to the people of the country."

"Lay on MacDuff, and damned be he who first cries, 'Hold, enough!'

"Bring on your cloture. Cloture has never been invoked save when this country was about to embark on a foreign adventure or misadventure."

"I make no agreement. I stand on my rights and when God no longer permits me to stand on my feet and express myself, I'll take my medicine."

"Bring on your cloture. Do it, sir."

Hale (Rep.), Maine, another of the treaty opponents, announced that he would add to the growing list of reservations with one provision that the "United States should be allowed to build the types of ships we need."

Immediately after the Johnsonian defiance, Watson began circulating a cloture petition on the Senate floor.

Signatures came fast. Watson said later that he had the necessary 16 in five minutes and that others brought the total to about 25. The Senate rules provide that a cloture petition shall lie over for a day before being voted upon. A two-thirds vote is required to make it effective. Immediately after its adoption, each Senator is limited to one hour's speechmaking, on the pending business. Watson said he had not decided whether to file the petition today or tomorrow. If he should bring it in today, the vote on it would come Saturday.

Cloture was last invoked in the World Court fight by a vote of 52 to 50.

Watson asked the opposition yesterday to agree to limitation, be-

Indian Leaders to Ask Gandhi To End Disobedience Campaign

Sir Tej Sapru and M. Jayakar Receive Permission From Viceroy to Visit Mahatma in Jail.

By the Associated Press.

SIMLA, India, July 17.—Viceroy Irwin has agreed to permit Sir Tej Sapru and M. Jayakar, Indian leaders to see Mahatma Gandhi and two other national leaders now in jail with a view to persuading them to conclude the civil disobedience campaign.

The Viceroy, in a letter to Sir Tej and Jayakar, repeated the assurance given in his recent address before the Indian Legislature regarding the Government's desire that Indians should manage their own affairs subject to temporary safeguards in the sphere in which full responsibility is not yet possible.

The two Indian leaders will conduct their negotiations with Gandhi on their own responsibility.

In addition to the Mahatma, they will see Motahil Nehru and Jawaharlal Nehru, both of whom are co-leaders with Gandhi in the campaign for Indian independence.

CALCUTTA, Bengal, July 17.—A rioting which broke out last Friday in Kishoreganj and neighboring villages today was still out of control of the authorities, although the general situation was improved.

Although at first understood to be the result of Hindu-Moslem antagonisms, the Governor of Bengal, in a statement to a deputation of five Councillors, said the disturbance was due to the "disturbance of the people."

The Danger for Democracy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
PROF. WILLIAM DURANT, one of the country's ablest writers on history and kindred subjects, predicted the failure of democracy and the entire control of the Government by political machines within a few years.

The danger referred to by Prof. Durant is apparent to all who take sufficient interest in public affairs to keep fairly well informed. That the danger is a real one is proved by consideration of the comparatively small percentage of voters who attend the primaries and the general elections. But the danger might be checked, mitigated or entirely prevented if the voters could be induced to take more active and intelligent interest in the primaries.

Political parties (not machines), but open, honorable party organizations are essential in our country, and as such parties are now constituted and carried on the greater part of the work of control and direction of the campaign is done by committees; and the local township committees and committee-women are the foundation of all the committed fabric and party organization. This is essential that these ward and township committee members should be selected from among the intelligent, active, honest and reliable members of the party. Yet in many townships throughout the State the selection of the township committee members is given little attention. Sometimes poorly qualified and indifferent persons are voted for merely as a "joke." In the county in Southwest Missouri where I published a local newspaper for many years I have known utterly unqualified men to be elected on the committees by the votes cast by voters in a spirit of "joshing."

Just now the selection of committee-men and committee-women in the various wards of St. Louis is of tremendous importance to the Democratic party, and every person who claims membership in that party should attend the primary on Aug. 5 and take part in the selection of ward committee members voting for the best, most intelligent, dependable and loyal men and women available for the positions.

CHARLES E. REID.
The Old Olympic, Faust's and Michelob. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE letter entitled, "Years For the Good Old Days," published in your paper recently appealed to me and I would like to add my little mite saying, hurry and bring back those wonderful days.

How well I remember the many enjoyable evenings spent at the old Olympic Theater to see the best actors of all time at $1 for the best seats. Afterwards one mingled with the best people from all parts of the world at the old Southern Hotel, with Jack Ryan back of the counter telling funny stories. Then there was Tony Faust's, where the best food was to be had at a very moderate price and Michelob beer was served at 5 cents per copy. "There were the days."

LOUIS TEUSCHER JR.

Thinks Judge Roseman Should Resign. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT has been common practice for candidates whose political positions are likely to place them in an embarrassing position with voters to relinquish their offices and divest themselves of political or judicial authority. The candidate may then devote his time to the affairs of the campaign and make it unnecessary to decide what, if any, the use of his office will have on a voter's preference at the polls.

This should be especially true in the case of Police Judge Roseman at a time when he is a candidate for Prosecuting Attorney. Many favors are sought in a police court. It must be embarrassing at times for Judge Roseman to make a decision which might result in a loss of political favor.

I do not think that the Judge would look favorably upon crime for the sake of a few votes, but do believe that the voters would feel more kindly toward the candidate for Prosecuting Attorney if he resigned the position he now holds.

JUSTICE.

Washington and Hoover. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE year 1932 will be the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, our first President, and the only one of our long line of Presidents to come to the presidency without having to make a contest for that high office. He was the unanimous choice of the people for two terms. Also was one of the only two of our rulers that was offered a third term. Also the year 1932 will mark the fourth year of Hoover's presidency and the end of his first term. Will the Republican President have to make a contest for his second term? And will he be offered a third term as was Washington and Jefferson?

I am thinking the Republican President is no Washington or Jefferson and will have to make a contest against a Democrat statesman. He will find the elephant up against it when he races with the mule of 1932.

CHICAGO'S AMAZING SITUATION.

The Lingle murder in Chicago, which exposed a dirty mess concerning the gangster alliances and graft activities of a reporter of the Chicago Tribune, has developed into an amazing newspaper situation.

The Chicago Tribune, in a leading editorial, accuses the publishers of the other Chicago newspapers of changing from an attitude of co-operation in the investigation of gangsterism and graft prompted by the murder to that of obstruction and hostility.

Stanley Elliott should turn out to be an excellent professor of history, unless his experience has soured him and he begins preaching the isolationist doctrine of "America first."

WHERE IS MR. BECKER'S REPORT?

In a letter to Gov. Caulfield, written April 26, Charles U. Becker, Secretary of State, promised to make a full report to the Governor of all transactions had by Becker and his subordinates with the defunct brokerage firm of W. H. Young & Bros., Inc., of St. Louis. Mr. Becker said:

In response to your letter of April 23, which was issued and immediately broadcast over WOS, after I had left town on an important mission and which brought me back to Jefferson City as soon as I heard about it, I beg to inform you that I shall be delighted to furnish you with all available data in the office of the Secretary of State on the Young failure.

You know, and the St. Louis newspapers know, that all of the records in my office are open to inspection, at all times, to the humblest citizen and to the Governor alike, and that it requires no newspaper request to obtain any information you desire.

Nearly three months have elapsed, but Mr. Becker has not yet made his report to the Governor. As has been told, Mr. Becker's subordinate, Securities Commissioner Fenton Stockard, was repeatedly warned by the Better Business Bureau of St. Louis of the dangerous nature of the Young Bros' activities. In fact, Stockard himself acknowledged in writing that the Young Bros. were "skating on thin ice." Yet in January of this year he renewed their license to operate. It has also been shown that the Youngs contributed to Mr. Becker's campaign fund and supported him in the election.

In view of the plain indication that Mr. Stockard's blue sky department failed to function in the case of the Young Bros, the public is keenly interested in Mr. Becker's report. The case deserves the fullest investigation in order that responsibility may be placed where it belongs, and to safeguard the people of Missouri from further incidents of this nature.

NEWS REEL

New York noise commission reports loud radios impair public health, and Barnegat (N. J.) poultry raiser finds radio installed in henhouse increases output of eggs; Hoover makes plea for reduction of armaments, and sword is stolen from statue at Syracuse, N. Y.; St. Louis has temperature of 104.2 degrees, and Paris enjoys snow flurries; Kansas City prepares to pay 10-cent trolley fare, and court decision upholds New York 5-cent subway rate; Navajo Indians decide to irrigate instead of appealing to rain gods, and Mexican village, after prayer for rain, suffers cloudburst that destroys houses and crops; Springfield (Mass.) woman who fed tramp 16 years ago gets $30,000 from his estate, and $5 reward is offered to Washington clerk who found $600,000 in indorsed checks; baby, 9 days old, brought to St. Louis in plane, and Grand Island (Neb.) woman, 99, enjoys first plane ride.

BUREAUCRACY IN CHARACTER.

The Chamber of Commerce feels St. Louis has been unfairly treated in the census figures. It has evidence to support its complaint. Its own partial enumeration showed the official canvass to be faulty; that many names were omitted. Its case was convincing enough to persuade the Census Bureau to send a staff man here—E. K. Ellsworth—to supervise the reckoning.

No reckoning was made. After a mere gesture the job was abandoned. The tentative reckoning was directed, so the chamber asserts, to justify the original figures of the local bureau rather than to ascertain the facts and do justice to the city. "Bureaucratic in the extreme" is the chamber's comment on the attitude and action of Mr. Ellsworth. That verdict is severe, but it may fairly be said that a responsible body like the Chamber of Commerce would not lightly make such a charge. Anyhow, the experience is illuminating. It marks a possibility of gang control which heightens its menace beyond words.

If the press deserts its post as the guardian of public interest and safety and becomes the ally of criminals and corrupt officials the last hope of redemption fades. Any tendency in this direction, therefore, is significant and important to the public. That is the reason the Chicago situation is being watched by press and public everywhere with intense interest. We expect all the newspapers of Chicago to do their duty. Surely there is one that will honestly and fearlessly attack the corrupt combine. For the sake of Chicago, the public and the press, let us have all the facts.

LEOPOLD AUER.

Wherever the violin is revered as the medium of great art, so also is the name of Leopold Auer, who has just died. Auer, a Hungarian who spent 50 of his 85 years in Russia, was easily the most celebrated teacher of the violin in the world. He came to this country in 1918 after an illustrious career in St. Petersburg, where he was a brilliant member of the pre-revolutionary society and a pet of the Czar, who heaped many honors upon him. Jascha Heifetz, Mischa Elman and Efrem Zimbalist are three of the great violinists who learned their art from Auer. Merely to study under Auer, especially in his later years, was a certificate of fine musical accomplishment. If he could devote his time only to the most promising pupils. He had the magic teaching quality which ferrets out genius and brings it to full blossom.

ESTHETICS AND POWER DEVELOPMENT.

The principal argument made in the fight to save Cumberland Falls, Ky., from an Insull power development project was that a place of great natural beauty would be marred forever. It appears now that it is futile to make that argument before the Federal Power Commission. According to a ruling of Attorney-General Mitchell, the Federal Power Commission has not been authorized by Congress to refuse licenses for esthetic and recreational reasons. As the Baltimore Sun puts it, "If a power project will not directly and substantially affect the navigability of the stream upon which it is located, the commission cannot refuse to issue license for construction."

In the case of Cumberland Falls, the Kentucky Legislature has accepted the offer of ex-Senator Pont to buy the site and turn it over to the State, and it has authorized the condemnation of the Falls for public park purposes. But Mr. Mitchell's ruling seriously affects other projects. There is a possibility that the Current River will be formed into a chain of lakes by power companies, thus destroying the character of one of the loveliest streams in the country. Certainly the esthetic argument is pertinent here, and the law should be changed to release the Federal Power Commission from the severe limitations which now surround the granting of licenses.

STUDYING U. S. HISTORY ABROAD.

Stanley Elliott, a high school youth of West Linn, Ore., obeyed the rules and didn't peer down the gullet of the gift horse when he learned his essay had won first prize among 87,000, entitling him to a year's study abroad. Arrived in England, he found that no college there gave a course in United States history, his chosen field. Now, at home again, he discloses that he had to study nineteenth century European history instead.

Stanley, however, has no reason to wear the downcast expression of a neophyte who has just returned from holding the bag in a snipe hunt.

To one who aspires to teach United States history, as he does, there is a vast amount of background and pertinent fact involved in what happened the Continent in the nineteenth century. The Napoleonic wars and the resultant blockade, the Holy Alliance, the indus-

GETTING HOTTER.

Happy Lot of the Average Working Man

To show how much better off we are than we used to be, statistician breaks good news that average worker's income has increased 55 per cent in 36 years; this great advance figures up as annual gain of four cents a day, part of it in cash; average man is handy figure for proving this the best of all worlds.

J. B. S. Hardman in the Advance, Organ of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

THE average income, per person, in the United States has increased 31 per cent in terms of a dollar of constant purchasing power in the period from 1909 to 1928. This improvement may not appear very striking, but it would tend to show a steady and growing increase in the people's well-being, if the increase had been evenly distributed among the various classes of the people. But it has not been evenly distributed.

Wage earners have gained a 27 per cent increase in earnings. The gain of salaried employees is only 18 per cent. But the major part of the increase is registered by the property-owning and business people.

These figures are based on calculations quoted by Dr. Wesley Mitchell, head of the National Bureau of Economic Research and director of President Hoover's Committee on Social Trends. The worker's lot, according to Dr. Mitchell's statement, has improved 55 per cent, in the longer period from 1890 to 1926, during which time the length of the working day has also been reduced from an average of 53.4 to 49.3 hours per week.

It is quite possible that the improvement would appear even more impressive if the years since the fall of Rome were included in the period thus calculated. It may be safely stated that there has been considerable progress in the percentages of wages received by the average person in the last 3500 years or so. Unfortunately, the average life of the average person is considerably below 2500, and an improvement to be appreciated by living people must take place in their own lifetimes. Let us then see what this improvement referred to by statisticians really amounts to.

A gain of 55 per cent in the average manual laborer's earnings in 36 years is not a lot of improvement when viewed closely. It represents an improvement of about 1½ per cent a year. If we should figure that the average worker earned $200 a year 36 years ago, and that is a good deal more than he really earned in those days, his situation in one year would improve to the extent of $13.50, or 4 cents a day.

That is, after one year has passed, if all went well, he is in a position to place at the disposal of his wife and, let us say, three children, a daily improvement worth four cents, that is a cent a day for every one of them, with himself counted out.

Of course, he would have to work a good deal harder than before to earn the four cents. In no news that work has grown more intense and exacting in these 36 years. So it is not unlikely that the average worker would have got around to padlocking it. The padlock order demanded that the bar be removed at once. This "bar" proved to be the church pulpit. The prohibition farce, with its stupidity, its disregard of rights and its unjust penalties, here reaches an eleventh-hour ad absurdum.

The total outlay for the session of Congress just adjourned was $4,324,310,597, and Chairman Jones of the Senate Appropriations Committee says that 70 cents of every dollar in that enormous pile "went for military purposes and results of war." Mars certainly continues to burn up everybody's money.

WASHINGTON, July 17.

ONLY once or twice in any session of Congress do Senators and Representatives inaugurate a brand-new policy for the country. Most of their work consists a developing old ones—broadening here, cutting down there.

But the Congress which has just passed into history did start one—a policy entirely new—one that is likely to have a far-reaching effect in the years to come on the cultural status of the country. It bought $1,500,000 worth of incunabula. She showed things that were produced before the year 1500.

Dr. Otto Volborth of Germany arrived in this country not long ago with his collection. Among the 3000 pieces was a Bible, printed in Latin and on vellum by Johann Gutenberg somewhere between 1450 and 1455. It is one of the three perfect copies known to have survived.

Ross Collier, a member of Congress from Mississippi, took a look at this Gutenberg Bible, and was so impressed with it and the other pieces in Dr. Volborth's collection that he promptly introduced a bill calling on the Government to buy the collection and have it placed in the Library of Congress.

All agreed that it would be a nice tragedy to permit the collection to pass into other hands. At the same time they deplored the loss of Uncle Sam joining the army of collectors of rarities.

THE Library of Congress always has been a library of service. It has been slow to purchase those things where rarity is the chief factor.

Not so long ago a notable Chinese collection was obtained which some thought came very near to being valuable from the collector's standpoint rather than from the standpoint of use. Study of this collection has revealed that important information bearing upon agriculture has been disclosed which will likely prove of great benefit to farmers.

So despite the fact the Volborth collection cost more than 10 times what the library gets each year for the purchase of books, Congress voted to buy it.

MAH JONG SWEEPS JAPAN.

From the Ceylon Press. MAH JONG, that Chinese game, is a menace to the morals of Japan, according to local police. The authorities declare that not only men, but women, too, are engaging in the vicious practice of actually wagering sums of money on the vagaries of the winds, the drowses, the shows and the punks. Accordingly, the police have started a drive to dislodge the monster. Mah Jong, from his hold upon the social vitals of the capital. Last year the popularity of Mah Jong commenced to revive, and the game has spread again like wildfire throughout Tokyo. There are more than 200 Mah Jong clubs here, and all night sessions are being held all over the city. While gambling is strictly forbidden in the clubs, much of it is going on, as the police have decided to hand down a set of rules to preserve the Tokyo health and morals.

First Big Reception to Be Attended by Mrs. Hoover Since Her Injury.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 7.—President and Mrs. Hoover entertained 250 persons at a White House garden party yesterday afternoon. After spending half an hour under the trees to receive the 721 guests, including the veterans and many of the nation's notables, and the Chief Executive and his wife sought out the men in wheel chairs and on crutches to have an informal visit with them.

Cabinet officers and women in almost summer attire stood aside while President and Mrs. Hoover chatted with Tom Cushing of North Carolina, flat on his back on a wheeled hospital bed. Tom wore a yellow and black striped dressing gown to the President's party because of an injured back received while he was an aviator in the World War.

To Capt. William McEvoy, another disabled veteran, the President expressed hope he would soon be back home in sunny California.

The party marked Mrs. Hoover's first appearance at a big reception since her injury many weeks ago. She showed no fatigue.

Alton Hoover Refuses Vacation.

By the Associated Press.
BUFFALO, N. Y., July 17.—Alton Hoover, younger of the President's sons, has given up a summer vacation to learn the business of a big radiator manufacturing concern with which he has become connected since his graduation from Harvard in June. He came to Buffalo after visiting plants of the company in other cities. Young Hoover explained he had been doing clerical work so far. He left Buffalo for New York en route to Washington to spend a few days at the White House with his parents. Next Monday he will be back on the job in the Bayonne (N. J.) factory.

Day by Day in Europe
By O. O. McIntyre

ALWAYS say au revoir to Paris with a gulp despite that in these post-bellum days the city has taken on the qualities of a beautiful but urticaceous plant—netted with stinging thorn. The Paris of exquisite gallantry and gushing hospitality—so far as Americans are concerned—has almost vanished.

I speak of Paris alone and not France as a nation. In the provinces the simple and obliging charm that characterize the French is unchallenged. Lately, and in justice to Paris, it is our own fault. We have been suckers and are paying the price and reaping the whirlwind the sucker sows wherever he goes.

The duality of prices, aimed almost solely at Americans, for the British will not stand the gaff, in the big dressing-room establishments as well as almost every other shop in the city, offers the most impudent hijacking ever devised. Coupled with this is the thieving concierge system in American patronizing hotels.

Multiply this personal incident of the morning by a full score daily and you have a fair idea. A suit of clothes was to be delivered to my hotel room. At 20 minute intervals three door-banging ruffians—one with vest, another with coat and still another with pantaloons—upset the household, merely to get three tips instead of one.

If this trifling incident were not a part of the studied organized petty banditry it would not be mentioned here. But it is. No Frenchman would suffer it, and the most hopeful sign that Americans are not going to suffer it much longer is that Paris shops have not been so idle or hotels so desolated in many years.

Paris, of all the continental cities, is almost wholly dependent upon tourists for its financial well-being. France as a whole can get along without us, but Paris cannot. A second-rate hotel in Paris now has a tariff as high as a first-class ho-

SAN ANTONIO DEDICATES
PARK MUNICIPAL THEATER

Henry W. Kiel, President of Opera Association Here, Delivers Address.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 17.—Three St. Louisans departed yesterday to visit Monterrey after taking part in the dedication of the outdoor municipal theater of San Antonio, with an address by Henry W. Kiel, former Mayor of St. Louis and president of the St. Louis Municipal Theater Association.

Kiel was accompanied by Walter B. Weisbrenner, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, and M. J. Collins, a director of the opera association. Kiel praised the picturesque natural setting in a great park, comparable to the St. Louis natural amphitheater in Forest Park. The dedicatory production by the San Antonio Civic Opera Company was "The Bohemian Girl."

DULLEST THEATRICAL SEASON
IN MANY YEARS IN U. S.

Chicago Has Only One Play for First Time in 98 Years, New York Only 15.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Only 28 plays and musical comedies were presented in the United States last night, Chicago, for the first time in 98 years, having only one play, and New York 15, establishing this as the dullest July Broadway has seen since the World War summer of 1917.

Distributed about the rest of the country are 10 more shows, according to producers' records. Included in the 10 are two musical tableaux, five stock productions and one minstrel show.

The annual survey made by Actors' Equity Association on July 19, considered the dullest day in the whole year in New York, will disclose the lowest number of productions ever listed by Equity, whose records run back to 1922.

London, with 16 shows, also is complaining about the dullest theatrical summer in years but it is unusual for London to have more shows than New York.

Joseph T. Caffall:

29 CANDIDATES TALK
TO WOMEN VOTERS

Seekers of Judicial and Prosecuting Offices Heard at City Club Luncheon.

Twenty-nine candidates for Republican and Democratic nominations for judicial and prosecuting offices were seen or heard at a luncheon at the City Club yesterday under the auspices of the club and the League of Women Voters. Only one hour was required for the program, since speakers were limited to three minutes and 14 candidates who are unopposed for nomination were merely introduced.

The unopposed group signed a factitious round robin, which they sent to the chairman, Charles M. Hay, Democratic leader, saying: "We admit our qualifications."

Mrs. H. McClure Young, president of the League of Women Voters, opened the meeting and Mrs. George Geilhorn closed it, calling attention to the records of candidates which the League has compiled.

Three of the seven Republican candidates for Prosecuting Attorney spoke. This is the most active and interesting contest in the primary, politicians think. The first candidate, Associate City Counselor Harry H. Richards, declared the "white light of interest" of the whole campaign was turned on this office, which, he declared, must be kept free of bad influences and the danger of favoritism in dismissals or continuing cases. He promised to exercise strict impartiality if elected.

Walter E. Benz said the only one of the seven candidates he was worrying about was himself. He criticized three opponents for campaigning while holding office. They are Police Judge Roscean, Richards and First Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank V. Fana. Drawing applause with references to his three children, Fana said he had been in the office seven years and asserted his belief in "some law enforcement" as "I have never violated a law to enforce a law." This, possibly, was an allusion to State prohibition.

Ten of the 13 candidates for six Republican nominations for all terms as Circuit Judge spoke. Some of their remarks follow:

Police Judge Clyde C. Beck: "I am the most hard-boiled Judge."

Circuit Judge Frank Landwehr:

"I have made mistakes of the head, but never of the heart."

Circuit Judge Granville Hogan:

"Chairman Hay was trying a case in my court one Monday morning and objected to the way I looked at the jury. I sustained him."

Mrs. Mable Hinkley:

"The Judges should make a rule that one Judge should sit in the Juvenile Court for his entire six-year term, as children's cases drag out. If I feel a woman should be on that bench, if elected, I'll give $5000 of my first year's salary to start a home outside the House of Detention for neglected and dependent children, for temporary care."

Circuit Judge Arthur H. Bader:

"I promise to live up to what I think should be the standards of every Judge."

Alroy S. Phillips:

"I was surprised at getting the Bar Association endorsement, because I worked for the workmen's compensation law for 15 years and lawyers didn't like that and don't like it. that Judge Roscean is staying on the police bench during his campaign, with many cases of traffic violations on his docket.

Because Capt. Wetzel of the Laclede Avenue District refused to shake hands with him, Judge Roscean said he left the station instead of discussing the situation. Capt. Wetzel and several subordinates were punished by the Police Board last winter after Judge Roscean denounced the mistreatment of a youth under arrest.

Associate City Counselor Richards, a candidate opposing Judge Roscean, told the North Side Republican Women's Club at the Fairground Hotel last night, that nomination of a weak candidate for any office might defeat much or all of the Republican ticket in the general election. The Judge's son, Mortimer Rosecan, speaking at last night's meeting, said his father was seeking to become Prosecuting Attorney "upon his excellent record in Police Court."

THE most important wedding of the summer season, and the last large function scheduled on St. Louis' social calendar until autumn, was that of Miss Loraine Grover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Grover, of the Lenox place, which took place at Belmont yesterday afternoon in Our Lady of Lourdes Church. The Rev. Francis J. O'Connor officiated.

The simplicity which characterized the wedding at this time of year supplanted the formality of the winter season. Decorations at the church, with the exception of the many tapers which illuminated the altar, were dispensed with, and the young women in the bridal party wore filmy summer frocks with the groomsmen in white trousers and blue coats.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her summery wedding gown of French net with trimmings of Belgian valenciennes lace. The upper part of the gown was fashioned of alternate bands of lace and net, fitting the figure to the knee, where it flared into full net. Bridesmaids lengthened into a lace-edged train at the back. The neck was cut quite high in an oval, and there were mousquetaire sleeves of white crepe, simple in design but fitted bodices and long circular skirts. The necklines were cut high in back and to a low square in front, and were finished with lace dyed to an ermine. There were short bell-shaped sleeves and tailored belts of lace over grosgrain ribbon in the natural waistlines, finished in back with lace bows. The wedding veil of white tulles was arranged to her head with a crushed tulles band, fastened with matching bands finished with stiff bows, and their shoes were tinted to match. They carried round bouquets of blue cornflowers.

Miss Ellen Bates, maid of honor, wore Chanel blue eyelet embroidery over crepe of the same tone trimmed with d'Alencon lace, fashioned like that of the bridesmaids. Her flowers were yellow daisies and her hat and shoes were yellow. The matron of honor, Mrs. John Burton Kennard Jr., was gowned in white organdie sleeveless, and belted with blue crepe. The skirt was fashioned of a series of flat circular flounces from the hips, and was cut short at the side front to reveal sprays of hand embroidered forget-me-nots on the slip. She wore blue moire slippers and a blue hat to match of rough straw. She carried cornflowers.

James M. Francis Jr. was his brother's best man, and the groomsmen were Clinton L. Whittemore Jr., Allen Grover of New York, brother of the bride; Shapleigh Boyd, John Hayward, Lee Johnson, Fielding Childress, George Tiffany, Jr., Thomas Wright Pettus, William Weld and Ford Collier.

When
Babies
CRY

Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults.
Most of these little upsets are soon smoothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.
It may be the stomach. Or, in the case of older children, a congested condition. Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment, and could by no possibility do the youngest child the slightest harm.

So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue;
won't play, can't sleep, is fretful or out of sorts. Get the genuine;
it always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

SUSPECT HELD IN MURDER OF NAVY DEPARTMENT CLERK

Herman H. Barrere Arrested in Montreal; Accused of Killing Miss Mary Baker.

By the Associated Press.

MONTRÉAL, Canada, July 17.—Herman Henry Barrere, 27-year-old itinerant painter, wanted for the killing of Miss Mary Baker, a Navy Department employee in Washington, was held in jail here yesterday for authorities in Arlington County, Virginia.

He was arrested when he visited police headquarters to complain of the theft of $150. Police recognized him from the description given in a circular broadcast from Washington.

He admitted his identity, but denied knowing anything about the killing. William G. Gloth, Commonwealth Attorney for Arlington County, sent word he would start at once for Montreal with a murder warrant.

Miss Baker's body was found in a stream near Arlington National Cemetery April 12. She had been assaulted and shot. Several suspects were questioned but released.

For Barrere was begun a month ago after authorities learned he had been in the vicinity at the time of the murder.

BUS LINES CUT MEMPHIS FARE
AFTER RAILROAD REDUCTION

Motor Carriers Charge $1 Less One Way and the Same for Round Trip.

St. Louis-Memphis fare has been cut to $5 one way and $6 round trip by the Atlantic-Pacific, Pickwick Greyhound and Cotton Belt bus lines following a reduction in railroad fares June 10 to $11.19 one way, with a special $6 round trip.

The rail cut placed the round trip considerably below the bus fare, which then was $10.80 for the round trip. One way by bus was $6, the rate at which the trip can be made by train by using only the St. Louis-Memphis coupon of the round trip ticket. One way bus fare is now $1 less than the trip can be made by train by this method, and round trip fares are equal.

For the convenience of foreign listeners, Lindbergh will talk over the short-wave trans-Atlantic radio at 2:25 p. m., Central Standard time, and repeat the talk over a nation-wide network in the United States at 8 p. m. (Central time).

Drops Oil Search in Panama.

PANAMA CITY, July 17.—After many years of fruitless exploration on the Isthmus, the Gulf Oil Co. has decided to abandon the Isthmus field and has formally asked for cancellation of the contract awarding a concession to search for oil. Actual exploration in the Province of Darien was suspended several months ago, but the concession granted in 1922 was retained and the company regularly paid an annual fee of $2500. The only other oil concern retaining concession rights is the Sinclair Oil company.

CHAPTER 14.

THE Labor day house party "thrown" by Ted and Irene Matthews, those inveterate throwers of parties of all kinds, assembled the Friday before Labor day. It assembled, to be precise, all Friday long. Quite early in the morning the Matthews' car dispatched to the station for the first guests returned full of luggage, and the Ford truck dispatched with it for the luggage returned full of guests—a transportation typical of the spirit of the affair.

Quite late in the afternoon the last pair of motorists appeared, having been arrested for speeding. And in the interim, car after car, sedan after sedan, after limousine, halted under the porticoes and dumped jaunty gentlemen and silken scented girls on to the wide verandas.

It was a busy day for Mrs. Matthews' maids, who toiled upstairs with suitcases, unpacked, pressed gowns, ran errands. It was a busy day for Mrs. Matthews' chef, who prepared luncheon for nine and dinner for 22. It was a busy day for Mrs. Matthews' husband, who, aided by the butler, mixed many rounds of tan and yellow drinks. But for Mrs. Matthews it was not a busy day. No day was. A more casual lady, a more irresponsible hostess, never lived.

When the vanguard of her visitors swarmed into her home she was nowhere in sight. "I'm not up!" her blithé wife informed them from the hidden head of the stairs. "I am that scandalous!"

"But I'll get up—since it's you!" When Gay Leonard and Alan Pomeroy arrived by motor about 2, they passed her a block from her own street, going rapidly the other way in Benny Henley's racing car. She blew them a kiss and was back in an hour, unabashed and unapologetic. She met no guests at the door unless she chanced to be near it as they entered; but no guests, knowing Irene, expected her to. They went cheerfully around looking for her, and when they found her, were compensated, because she was so palpably glad to see them.

Having disposed of the amenities, each guest proceeded at once, straight to a racing bird, to the house of the amusement. There he or she drank and was toasted, amid the loudest acclaim—a custom hard on the earlier arrivals, some of whom, having downed one highball after another, found themselves rather full of highballs by half-past six o'clock.

At seven the migration to upper regions to dress for dinner began. Girls went up by twos and threes, prattling in the violet yet somehow detached fashion of girls when they have music on their minds. Men sauntered up in a leisurely way a little later, blowing great clouds of smoke.

Doors opened and banged. Water buzzed remotely in bathtubs. Damsels caught traversing hallways in negligees uttered squeaks of synthetic modesty and fled. Boys unable to locate the rooms assigned to them roamed to and fro, beating upon all doors and retorting impudently to the cries thus elicited from within. A dozen different voices joined the hostess: "Rene! Oh, Rene! Lend me your curling iron! I forgot mine and my ends are all straight." "Say, old thing, sorry to bother you, but where'd my suitcase go in, d'you know?" "Can one of the maids help me a minute, honey?"

"Irene! Station L.O.S.T., Windy Gram, announcing: Have a birth hereabouts, or did I just dream. I was invited."

By seven-thirty everyone was upstairs and in place and comparatively quiet. Then for half an hour or more nothing was to be seen of the house party, nothing was to be heard but the soft purr or the rough resonance of voices, muffled by the closed white doors.

"Starting off all right," Irene remarked.

"Yeah," said her husband.

He sounded somewhat strangled, and Irene, lipstick in hand, glanced back at him over one round bare shoulder. He was tying his tie, chin tilted ceilingward. He stood before the millionaire in that hideous stage of masculine adornment that immediately precedes the climb into the trousers.

It is a stage all wives know, a stage during which they are irresistibly moved to give vent to any connubial irritation, on any score, that may be rankling in their bosoms. Ted's trousers, which lay like a mourning band across the rose satin bedspread, would be donned in just a minute. So would the coat and vest that repose beside them. In the meantime, from the knees up, he was all shapeless shirt, and below the knees he appears as the young man appears in the earlier advertisements.

"You're a sight," said Irene crisply.

She turned back to her own mirror, and while inducing the lipstick to stick out its vivid tongue, said further, "You made those drinks too strong, Ted! What were you trying to do—put everybody to bed for the week-end?"

"Nobody's lit."

"Fierce in."

"Fierce always is."

SYNOPSIS.
GAY LEONARD, young, beautiful spoiled darling of fortune, is loved by Alan Pomeroy, an athletic young man. She has been fascinated by Jerry Davis of questionable reputation, and has been forbidden by her family to see him. While Gay is in Boston, Jerry meets Dolly Quinn, working as a shop girl by day and acting as a Broadway cabaret hostess in the evening to save enough money to go on with her art lessons. He becomes interested in her and begs her to let him see her the next evening. Gay, back in New York, calls him up, tells her inquisitive mother it is Alan she has been talking to and is going to meet. Later Alan calls and Mrs. Leonard learns that Gay has gone to Jerry's room. Gay's father comes in, tells Jerry what he thinks of him and carries Gay away. The family prepare to take her to Palm Beach. She swears that she won't go, calls Jerry, gets no answer and finally leaves for the South. Meanwhile, Dolly, through Jerry's good offices, gets a job as theater usher.

He confesses he loves her; but she tells him she does not care for him that way. Gay, back after an eight months' absence, accepts an invitation to a house party near Atlantic City. Still crazy about Jerry, she assures her mother she's put him entirely out of her head.

Matthews to concede Mr. Matthews the last word in any debate; he had it in this one. She remained mute, absorbed in the vital business of transforming her rather bloodless mouth into a gay little scarlet butterfly on the wing.

Women said—charitably, for they said it among themselves—that Irene Matthews did more with what nature allowed than any other woman alive. She was not beautiful, except for her limpid green eyes, she had not a single beautiful feature. But when she was groomed and coiffed and tinted she gave an effect of beauty so good as to deceive half the people good to see them.

Having disposed of the amenities, each guest proceeded at once, straight to a racing bird, to the house of the amusement. There he or she drank and was toasted, amid the loudest acclaim—a custom hard on the earlier arrivals, some of whom, having downed one highball after another, found themselves rather full of highballs by half-past six o'clock.

A Chinese Artist Draws 'Dumb Dora'

Paul Fung, American Born, Became Cartoonist After Doing Commercial and Theatrical Work.

By H. H. NIEMEYER

This is the fourth article in the series of famous cartoonists which is appearing in the Daily Magazine Section of the Post-Dispatch.

CHINA has its own cartoonists. A few of the newspapers and magazines in the Celestial republic have artists who poker in their countrymen occasionally and more frequently than foreigners. When newspapers are not interested the native artists tell their comic stories on paper fans and wall cards. But the United States has the only Chinese cartoonist who draws "strip" comics telling a consistent story day by day. His Americanized name is Paul Fung and his work is well known through his sketches of "Dumb Dora."

Paul Fung—Fung Chak Jr., or what ever the Chinese equivalent for "Jr." is, would be his name across the Pacific—is an American born Chinaman. Except for his appearance—he looks every inch the intellectual, high caste Chinese—Fung is a typical American. He speaks English more perfectly than the average citizen of New York, he lives and works, and his drawings are as thoughtful of this country as those of George McManus or Rube Goldberg or any of the other cartoonists. His Dora, of the "Dumb Dora," series, is an American girl and the other characters in his sketches are up to the minute, hustling United States.

For Fung is, to all intents and purposes an American boy. He was born in Seattle 32 years ago. His father, the Reverend Fung Chak was a Baptist minister in the Northwest. Paul started to school in Portland, Ore., and then his father sent him to China, the home of his ancestors. He went to school over there and studied art, too, under a Chinese teacher, learning to decorate fans with cherry blossoms and following the conventional designs prescribed by the Chinese text books.

His father sent him, every week, American newspapers and the boy, like most boys, was interested in crayons and began to draw pictures. As he drew—and laughs of which he displays in his comic strips, his little son, Paul Fung Jr., at 6 years of age, works in motion pictures at the New York studio of Warner Brothers. On the screen the little fellow is known as One Long Hop—a Chinese-sounding name devised by his father.

At the age of 20 Paul tried to enlist for service in the World War. He was rejected because of his height. He came under the draft the same year and was again rejected. He did not, however, fail to do his bit. His creations of wartime posters gained for him worldwide recognition. "The Sweetheart of the Allies" and "If You Can't Go Across, Come Across" being perhaps the two best known.

A JOKE was once played on the audience of the Orpheum Theater out in Seattle where Paul was playing—for the boy had his filing at the stage. After the snap-py one-act skit and before the Something Brothers in their song-and-dance act, a slim young American gorgeously arrayed in more than Oriental splendor, emerged from the wings with nothing up his sleeve except a lot of colored crayons and began to draw pictures. As he drew—and laughs of which he displays in his comic strips, his little son, Paul Fung Jr., at 6 years of age, works in motion pictures at the New York studio of Warner Brothers. On the screen the little fellow is known as One Long Hop—a Chinese-sounding name devised by his father.

Fung is married. His wife is a thoroughly Americanized Chinese girl and their children are the pets of the very American apartment house on Riverside Drive in New York where they live and where Paul turns out daily his Dumb Dora cartoons. When he is not working on these he paints in water color and in oils and his work is well known to collectors throughout this country.

It is doubtful if any other young far-Easterner has made so thoroughly and striking an artistic success of his talents as Paul Fung, the full-blooded Chinese boy who went out by his own efforts in the country of his adoption.

TOMORROW—Niemeyer will tell the story of Rube Goldberg, who has tickled America's funny bone for many years with his drawings.

Paul Fung, in everyday life, has the same keen sense of humor which he displays in his comic strips. His little son, Paul Fung Jr., at 6 years of age, works in motion pictures at the New York studio of Warner Brothers. On the screen the little fellow is known as One Long Hop—a Chinese-sounding name devised by his father.

At the end of the act the slim young chap was called back a number of times and as he smiled and bowed close over the footlights the audience recognized him. "Why, it's Fung," someone shouted. "It's Paul Fung, a real Chinaman!"

Paul Fung is a thoroughly Americanized Chinese boy who went out by his own efforts in the country of his adoption.

In other words, brother, you've yourself. Cruel words — but you've got to hear them some day,

ELICACY, which has come to be the keynote of dressing for the really smart woman, applies to every detail of her toilette. The fine line of her costume, the surface of the fabric that makes it, its color, would all be ruined if a bag were carried which was too heavy to harmonize with the delicate silhouette.

THE principle applies to the handkerchief. It should harmonize with the gown, but not be identical. Many of my smartest private customers have their shoes and bags made of the same fabric, which is always handsome in effect, but which I feel should not be overdone. Thus I have created evening bags which will reflect the colors of my principal gowns, in textures of crepe de chine, dull satin and finely water-marked moire. These I would recommend to be worn with silk evening pumps which match the color of the stockings—which, naturally, will be pale beige, either ruddy or golden, according to the natural flesh color of the woman.

Last but not least of the important evening accessories is the evening bag should be small, so as not to break the delicate evening silhouette. The large, plain-colored chiffon handkerchief which has skipped into the mode and out of it again for the last four seasons is again revived, and it forms one of the prettiest evening accessories. It may trail out of the small evening bag or it may be carried in the hand, but I hope that no woman will wear it tied about her wrist this season. The smartest women always devise a new way of handling their pretty playthings, and the handkerchief carried naturally, dropped in the lap, laid for a moment on the table only to be picked up again, is in order this year.

Likewise, it is decidedly poor form, in this day and age, to drop the handkerchief on the floor. In the days of crinolines and "beaux," dropping her handkerchief so that an attentive male might pick it up was one of the most attractive features of the woman. Today, when all the most sought for men about town are either in business or work hard at sport, gallantry expresses itself otherwise.

Last but not least of the important evening accessories for the woman today is her costume jewelry. I have created many models in crystal and in brass. From the rayon of them all, I feel that we have seen too much of
